

lunch @ wallacespace

Our chefs are taking the same approach to our lunches as before the pandemic began, with fresh, seasonal, tasty food and exciting menus that are designed to keep you feeling energised rather than weigh you down.

However, the way we serve our food has changed in line with Government recommendations.

You can still choose to eat in our caffès, in which case your food will be plated for you and numbers will be limited to ensure distancing. If you prefer, you can eat a boxed lunch in your room or a separate private space. The choice is yours.

Let us know where you would like to eat...

You can still choose to eat in our caffè, where your table will be laid with place settings spaced out to ensure social distancing.

You can also still see your food before you choose what to eat, in big bowls and serving dishes buffet style. However, for safety, the food is behind perspex screens. Just let our chefs know what you would like and they will plate it for you, wearing visors, gloves and masks.

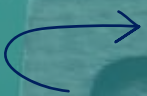

There is a limit to the number of people we can safely seat in our caffè at any one time, so we will ask you in advance what time you would like to join us for lunch.

Alternatively, we can bring a boxed lunch to your room or a separate dining area.

Some of our rooms have their own private entrances and your own kitchen area, meaning you can avoid mixing with other groups if you wish.
